This report is about a case of listeriosis in a 39-year-old man with a history of spinal trauma. Five days after the trauma, the patient was admitted to our hospital for acute onset of vomiting, febrile infection and headache. His past history included type 2 diabetes. Cerebrospinal fluid

(CSF) examination revealed increased protein concentration and significant lymphocytosis. The bacterial culture of the CSF was positive for Listeria monocytogenes. We diagnosed him as meningitis of listeriosis because he was immunocompetent. Upon admission, he had mild leukocytopenia and was treated with ampicillin-sulbactam for 14 days. The clinical course was uneventful, and the patient was discharged on the 17th day of the treatment. // Boost.Geometry (aka GGL, Generic Geometry Library) // Copyright (c) 2007-2012 Barend Gehrels, Amsterdam, the Netherlands. // Use, modification and distribution is subject to the Boost Software License, // Version 1.0.
